

Robert Lyons – Short Biography

Robert Lyons was born in Hungary, Budapest, and became a U.S. citizen after living and working in the United States of America for several years.

He also spent time in China at a Shaolin temple where he was learning Shaolin Kung-Fu. After his training period, he became a 3-time Professional World Champion in Kung-Fu qualified by the International Martial Arts Federation. This is where he first met Chinese Medicine and Manual Therapy.

After returning to the United States, he opened his Kung-Fu school, trained hundreds of young and adult students. He worked as a chief instructor with the US Army Special Forces Green Beret division – led by Colonel James W Comstock - in Crestline San Bernardino and the Northern Air Force Base.

In the next years, his focus turned to Chinese medicine studies again and after 5-year study, he graduated as “World Chinese Medical Doctor” at the faculty “World Chinese And Herbs United Association” of the International Martial arts Medical University in Los Angeles, California. This university was especially commended by Presidents and Governmental Officials of the United States. In 1996 he defended his doctorate diploma.

After graduation, he was working at Eastpark Research Inc., was responsible for product development such as D-Lenolate and Indium XL in Los Angeles and Las Vegas NV USA. His book - Indium: The Missing Trace Mineral - was sold in more than 8 million copies.

After establishing his own company in 2000, he started to work on the Kaqun project. The Kaqun Project is based on energizing the water. One of the five elements of Chinese Medicine is Water. He found the way to bound oxygen cluster form in the water by electrolysis process. He was following Otto Warburg’s footsteps on the importance of oxygen in life. After preliminary good results, he started to co-operate with Hungarian Governmental Institutes and laboratories on in vivo-in vitro trials, animal trials and human healthy patients on immune parameters changes, namely B cells, T cells, NK killer cells activations - after drinking KAKUN water for 14 days.

5 human trial studies – with ethical-medical licenses - were completed by the Governmental Institutes, researching the effect of KAKUN water on the human body.

Nowadays he gives presentations to doctors and naturopaths regularly about Chinese medicine, concerning Mitochondria dysfunctions and Hypoxia related conditions in connection with anti-aging and the Microbiome.

He makes presentations at colleges like the Association of Naturopathic Practitioners in London, Birmingham, Belfast, Edinburgh, Manchester, Bristol, and Brighton.
